As I sat and listened to the talented group in The Music Shop on Main Street in Rocky, I was reminded of the Bluebird Café in Nashville, Tennessee, where we visited on one of our vacations. The Bluebird Café is a small, intimate venue where numerous famous musical artists received their big break. The owner of The Music Shop, Gerry Bradshaw, has done a great job in recreating that sort of atmosphere. We really are very fortunate here in Rocky Mountain House to have such a variety of talent available to us.

About us (in the beginning)

Oct 27, 2007 The MusicShop opened by brothers, Jeff and Gerry Bradshaw. Lessons, rentals, sales and free advice on dating have stayed in full force.

Our heritage moving us forward

Because of the legacy of music handed down to us by our parents, Dennis and Dorothy Bradshaw, and because of their support and encouragement during hard economic times, the MusicShop has been able to move forward. In the fall of 2015 we decided to diversify by changing up our room. Our friend Michele Hepburn had some great ideas and was the magical force behind everything working. Her incredible touch and the help of many friends have changed the Musicshop into an interesting musical memorabilia concert theatre. Live performances from great artists in support of the arts and music are now possible. Folks it is really a pleasure to be able to bring this quality of music to our town. Thank you Michele for sharing your talent.

Folks, we hope you might stop by and have a look at this unique music shop, concert theatre and SOUP house.
